

Learn how you can apply Mission Control's experience – read the book!

Explore empowering values and critical ideas:

- The secret to Mission Control's renowned success has never been rocket science – it is a very deliberate morality that guides every judgment and decision.
- Reflecting the morality in everything we do leads to high-trust in each of us individually, is the key to our remarkable team performance, and is our defining cultural value.
- As we move up as managers, we often lose connection to this key morality, develop dysfunctional management practices, and risk unintentionally leading the team into preventable mistakes and failure.
- The hardest realization for leaders is that we are the problem – It is up to us to do something about our management practices or it is because of us if we do not and the organization continues to decline.
- When we rediscovered the connection as managers, we learned to reflect the same morality in our management practices and created a high-trust leadership team.
- Practicing this morality as managers enhanced performance at all levels, enabling unexpected innovations, dramatic cost savings, and critical strategic wins.

Like the morality, our discovery isn't rocket science, and you can leverage this empowering culture to boost your team's performance and develop your next generation of leaders.

"This incredible team's leadership journey — and development of precise decision-making in the face of unbelievable pressure — are inspiring. Every leader will find parallels to their own organization. A must-have for anyone leading a high-performance team and an invaluable addition to any business library. — Marshall Goldsmith, The author of the #1 New York Times bestseller – Triggers

"Paul Hill tells the true story of the game-changing transformation of Mission Control's senior leadership team. Ride along as these executives rediscover the core purpose and values that had never left their organization. Hill's candor and intensity makes this a fascinating read for every leader!" — Ken Blanchard, coauthor of The New One Minute Manager® and Leading at a Higher Level

"This is an arresting work. Paul offers a view from the inside... From there, he shows how the principles and values apply in a far larger arena. No leader or manager can fail to benefit from the lessons captured here." — Michael D. Griffin, NASA Administrator, 2005-09 and Schafer Corporation CEO

"A stunning 'instructional manual' for business executives and leaders who want to learn from the best team on the planet." — Mary Lynne Dittmar, President of the Coalition for Deep Space Exploration

"A cautionary tale that sustaining excellence may be more difficult than attaining it. Leaders from every organization will benefit from these vital lessons." — Walter E. Natemeyer, Chairman and CEO, North American Training and Development

"Mission Control is the leadership laboratory for those who accept the challenge and the risk of ultimate responsibility. Paul Hill is a select graduate." — Eugene F. Kranz, former NASA Flight Director and Director of Mission Operations

Failure is always an option, and so is choosing to lead your team into an environment that helps them avoid catastrophe and pull off miracles. For more than fifty years, NASA's Mission Control has done just that.

Take the ultimate insider's look at the leadership values and culture that made that track record possible. Paul paints a vivid picture, candidly portraying the critical cultural connections in human spaceflight triumphs and failures. By demonstrating how his Mission Control team learned to steward this culture into their management roles, Paul provides a guide for any organization to boost their own performance by leveraging the core ideas and values that have delivered "impossible" wins for decades.

Whether failure means cost and schedule overruns, quality escapes, loss of market share, bankruptcy, or putting people's lives at risk, how we lead can determine whether even small mistakes snowball out of control and destroy an enterprise.
